Getting Started

1.1 What is PIX?
PIX is an acronym for Preservation Information Exchange. It is a website developed by Rural Development’s Multi-Family Housing Office of Rural Housing Preservation at USDA. Here, non-profit organizations and public bodies, interested in providing affordable rental housing in rural America, can register and obtain information on Multi-Family Housing (MFH) properties that have applied to prepay or have offered to sell their property to a non-profit organization. Registered users can choose to receive information via email on MFH properties listed in their area of interest. A Property Fact Sheet provides additional information on each property including unit and rental information, contact information and even a picture of the property if available.

1.2 Benefits of PIX
As a housing organization interested in providing affordable rental housing in rural areas, this site will provide up-to-date information on Rural Development’s Multi-Family Housing properties that are listed for sale or prepayment. Contact information provided for each of these properties will enable you to directly contact the owner if you are interested in purchasing the property. You can also choose to receive updated listings via email on a weekly or monthly basis.
1.3 Registering with PIX
